FIVE HOUR DISCUSSION ON

Washington, Feb. 8.—For five hours eday senate finance committee repub-licans wrestled with the tariff valuation problem, but without concrete result. Their discussion was said to have clarified the atmosphere to some extent, however, and they will return to work tomorrow with renewed hope.

After a two-hour debate among themselves during the morning, the senators called in government tariff experts in the afternoon and had them demonstrate by actual example the working of the soveral valuation plans in the case of a given list of commodities.

For this purpose a large blackboard was brought in and the committee room resembled a school room during the reci-tation of a class in mathematics.
